City Where Contingent is Located Is All Astir at Prospect of Impending Departure of the Americans; Major General Sibert Completes Arrangements and Himself Will Leave in Automobile for Village on Western Front.

MAY BE WITHIN RANGE OF THE ENEMY'S FIRE

A FRENCH PORT, July 9.—This city was astir today at the prospect of the impending departure of the American contingent for its permanent training camp. Major General William L. Sibert has completed all arrangements for moving the men. The general himself will leave by automobile and will take up quarters already prepared in a village "somewhere in France" which will be within hearing of the German guns if not within direct range.

The troops were enthusiastic today at the prospect of getting several miles nearer real action and hailed vociferously the prospect of an early departure.

The town took a vacation to visit the camp.

While Secretary of State Lansing is taking a three weeks' rest from the recent arduous labors of his office the duties of Secretary of State will be performed by Frank L. Polk, counselor of the department. In the Department of State the counselor is the second highest official, ranking above the assistant secretaries. Mr. Polk is a New York man and was formerly corporation counsel of the city of New York.

RELATIVES VISIT LOCAL ENGINEERS BEFORE THEY LEAVE

Mrs. E. S. Russell Runs From Oakland to Hutton to See Son Earl.

The Fifth regiment of United States Engineers, in which are several Connellsville boys, after more than a month of intensive training at Camp Guilford, near Oakland, broke camp Friday, and after two and a half days on stony roads, moved in a long troop train for points unannounced by Lieutenant Colonel Edgar J. Russell, the other regimental officers.

Mrs. E. S. Russell, now located at Cincinnati, but formerly of Connellsville, who has been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Werner in Trotter for some time, in order that she might occasionally see her son, Earl Russell of Connellsville, before he left for war service, went down to Pittsburgh Friday morning. As she reached Oakland, she saw the troop train, and on arriving at the site of the camp, ran back several miles to Hutton, where she found her son and bade him goodbye.

When she left for Connellsville in the evening the troop trains were still there, with all the soldiers impatient to move. Through some hitch in the proceedings, they had had nothing to eat all day. As a matter of fact they did not leave until 10 o'clock yesterday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Harry and daughter, Gertrude, having that the evening had not yet left Pittsburgh, William Kelly, in Mr. Kelly's car they arrived at 1 o'clock, having started shortly after noon, and were too late to see S. J. Harry, Jr., another Connellsville representative in the regiment, since the train had started in the morning.

The regiment passed through here yesterday, and the local boys got what will likely be their last look at Connellsville for some time.

Nations sufficient to maintain the regiment five days were placed on board the train before it left for Pittsburgh, a touting sendoff was given the regiment as it pulled out yesterday morning.

Among the members of the regiment are Ernest Van Sant and Archie M. Cornick of Connellsville; Raymond C. Galt, formerly of Connellsville, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond S. Galt, and William Sturgeon of Uniontown, well known here.

REFORMATORY MAY FACE BOYS CHARGED WITH ROBBERING CARS

Twelve Inds. in Two Different Gangs, Arrested by Railroad Police.

Two bands of youthful robbers, each band numbering six boys, were taken into custody over the week end by the officers of the Baltimore & Ohio and Pennsylvania railroads. More are likely to be rounded up by the authorities before long. The boys range in age from 12 to 14. The six who robbed the Baltimore & Ohio of brass worth at least $500 are from South Connellsville, and the other six, who broke open Pennsylvania freight cars on the West Side, are West Side boys. Reformatory terms seem likely for some of them, at least.

After lying in wait for 17 nights for those who were breaking into freight cars on the Pennsylvania siding on the West Side Special Office John Detemple on Saturday night caught two boys, Ralph Jordan and Frank Pierce, neither over 13 years old. They, in turn, implicated four other boys, Michael Durst, Frank George, Clarence Costello, and Clifford Haines.

The articles stolen from the cars were worth $38.75, and included boxes of cakes, cases of canned beans, and five cases of root beer shipped from Ohio, and worth $11.50. When the robbers first took place, Officer DeTemple placed some merchandise in empty cars, and waited for the thieves to appear. Last Wednesday night, Jordan and Pierce broke open the head of a car, entered, and then left. "Thinking they would return, the officer remained and waited for some time, until he looked in the car himself and found that it was empty. Saturday night the boys were caught. Jordan and Pierce admit the charges made against them. Durst says that he was with a bunch of fellows who broke into a car, but says there was nothing there which they wanted to take. The other three boys deny their guilt. The last four boys were arrested this morning by Constable L. L. Gumbert. Jordan and Pierce are out on bail furnished by their parents. All will be given hearings tonight before Alderman Fred Nink.

Six South Connellsville youths were arrested Saturday evening by Captain Luders of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad detectives for larceny of cars and other railroad property valued at several hundreds of dollars. The youths were given hearings before Alderman Fred Nink and all were held for court. Those arrested are: Franklin Curtis, Walter Curtis, Roy Murland, Edward Helms, George Harrison, and John Osler.

For the last six weeks, according to the railroad police, the looting of cars and lifting of railroad property has been going on. "What has been taken from cars and trains in considerable quantities stolen. About 200 pounds of brass was recovered by the police but there is still much more to be located. Others may be arrested in connection with the robberies.

Brass parts, the whole amounting to several hundreds of dollars were taken. Brass is worth 35 cents a pound, but the gang broke it up and sold it to a negro junk dealer for 10 cents a pound. About 200 pounds which had been hidden was recovered. Some of the brass was taken from the car inspector's shanty.

MANY ROBBERIES

Quince's and Manhattan Entered; Beach Thief Mystery Cleared Up.

The Quince store in the Smith House building was broken into last night, and $36 in cash and a number of cigars and other merchandise taken. A hole cut in the screen of the door allowed opening of the door and gave the robbers entrance. Five dollars in a drawer went unnoticed and untouched.

The Manhattan restaurant was robbed Saturday evening. A negro entered the back door of the restaurant and took some meat from the refrigerator, before he was noticed by the cooks. City Detective J. W. Mitchell is working on a clue.

Detective Mitchell is also planning to arrest those who robbed the clothes at the South Connellsville "beach" of money and watches last summer. The names of the guilty ones came to light in the investigation of the Baltimore & Ohio thefts.

ON FOR CONVENTION.

J. L. Scarry, R. J. Blocher, W. P. Dowling, J. F. Biel, John Conway, John Cunningham, Harry Tipman and Dave Cohen left last night over the Baltimore & Ohio for Boston to attend the Elks' national convention. Mr. Cohen will stop off in New York on his return to buy fall and winter goods.

MANY INJURED WHEN NAVY STOREHOUSES ARE BLOWN UP

By Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9.—Two storehouses at the Mare Island navy yard on San Francisco Bay were destroyed by an explosion this morning. Whether any lives were lost has not been determined. Twelve of the 15 magazines were damaged by the explosion. The force of which broke thousands of windows in Vallejo, half a mile away. Fire started in the wrecked buildings and desperate efforts were made to prevent its spread to other buildings where explosives are stored.

Several buildings used as sleeping quarters were wrecked. Whether any men were in these buildings is not known.

Naval officials at Vallejo said about 200 men were employed in or near the buildings wrecked but whether these men had reported for work at the time of the explosion was not known.

The explosion occurred at 7:44 A. M. The concussion was terrific. At the Southern Pacific freight shed at Vallejo, two miles away, doors were torn from their hinges.

35 YEARS IN PRIESTHOOD, FATHER BURNS GETS $1,500 PURSE FROM CONGREGATION

Pastor Honored by Members of Immaculate Conception Church at Rededication.

HANDSOME FLAG IS RAISED

The rededication of the Immaculate Conception Roman Catholic church, the raising of a flag on the grounds of the rectory, and the presentation of a purse of $1,500 to Rev. Father John T. Burns in honor of the 35th anniversary of his ordination yesterday, were features of a day long to be remembered by the Catholic people of this section.

The dedication service was held at 11 o'clock, after two masses had been celebrated in the parish school hall. The church was recently rededicated, and this was the first service to be held in the newly beautified auditorium. In the absence of Bishop Regis Canavin of Pittsburgh, who was unable to come to Connellsville, the Rev. Monsignor Stephen J. Walsh, chancellor of the Pittsburgh diocese, presided at the church. This ceremony was followed by solemn high mass with Rev. Father John T. Burns, pastor of the church, as the celebrant. Rev. M. A. Lambing, master of ceremonies. A very eloquent and forceful sermon on "The Catholic Church" was then delivered by Monsignor Walsh.

The church had been beautifully decorated for the occasion, cut flowers and palms being there in abundance. The altar was especially lovely.

At 7:30 in the evening the handsome new American flag, made by the boys of the sixth and seventh grades of the parish school under the direction of John Collins, was blessed in the church by Rev. John T. Burns. It was then carried from the church to the town of the rectory by Joseph J. Lowmyer and Harry Smith, accompanied by about 12 other boys carrying a small staff.

Between the two boys who carried it. Here it was raised to the top of a 60 foot pole by Father Burns, while the assemblage sang "The Star Spangled Banner," and the bells tolled.

Solemn benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament followed the flag raising, inside the church, with Father Burns the celebrant, assisted by Rev. William Merz and Rev. J. J. Greaney.

The entire congregation then repaired to the auditorium of the parish school, where a reception was held for Father Burns, it being the occasion of his 35th anniversary of ordination to the priesthood. For 21 of these 35 years Father Burns has been pastor of the Connellsville church. An elaborate program, arranged by the Sisters of St. Benedict, was presented. It opened with a festive song by the school children and an address by Harry Smith, one of this year's graduates. There were solos by Miss Anna Goldfarb, John Rooney, and Fred W. Neudorff and a recitation, "The Naughty Boy" by Master Joseph Solson. The school children gave a pretty little opera, "Flowers of the Season," and the graduates sang a "Julius Song."

J. L. Fitzach of Pittsburgh, master of ceremonies of Connellsville, then presented Father Burns with a bouquet of 35 American Beauty roses. J. W. Rudston rose and advised the pastor to examine the gift carefully, for the sake of his safety. Father Merz consented to do this for Father Burns, and drew forth a "bomb" in the shape of a large freeracker. On a string in this bomb were tied $1,500 in uncut bills, the gift of the congregation to its pastor. Father Burns responded graciously.

The brilliancy of the day was emphasized by the number of prominent priests visiting here. Among them were:

The Rt. Rev. Stephen J. Walsh of Pittsburgh; Rev. M. A. Lambing of Scottsdale; Rev. M. J. Barry of Uniontown, a newly ordained priest, Rev. David Haggerty of Pittsburgh, Rev. P. J. O'Flynn of Monaca, Rev. Peter Brady of Natrona, Rev. Joseph Padon of West Newton, Rev. W. J. McCusick of Burgettstown, Rev. John J. Greaney of Leisenger, and Rev. Tusk of the West Side.

Rev. John T. Burns read a special high mass in the Immaculate Conception church this morning in celebration of his 35th anniversary.

The original registration cards have been sent to Washington, and copies of them to Adjutant General Stewart. The preliminary work of the board, which consists of H. M. McClelland, and Rev. William Merz, as master of ceremonies. A very eloquent and forceful sermon on "The Catholic Church" was then delivered by Monsignor Walsh.

Quite a few men have gone to Mr. Munson's office to see what number they will be represented by in the draft.

The complete list of draft eligibles with their serial numbers, will be published in The Courier, probably beginning tomorrow. There are 2,670 in all. Basil Joseph Solson, Connellsville, is No. 1 and Charles Goodwin Stiles, Jr., Connellsville, is No. 2,670. 857,000 MEN MAY BE DRAFTED NEXT SATURDAY.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Although no official announcement has been made it is unofficially stated that 857,000 is the number of men to be selected for the first national war army from the millions registered June 5. Probably twice that number of names will be drawn, as the number of exemptions to be allowed is estimated at 50 per cent.

Next Saturday is understood to have been tentatively fixed upon as the date for the drawing, although no announcement has been made by the Provost Marshal General's office.

WOMEN TO BE SHOWN RIGHT CANNING METHODS

The home economic department of Pennsylvania State college will send demonstrators in cold packed and other canning methods to Fayette county during the week of July 16 and 17. The ladies will work under the supervision of the Fayette County Farm bureau and the food division of the Committee on Public Safety, the idea being to demonstrate the best methods of preserving beans, peas, carrots, beets, sweet corn, tomatoes and other vegetables that are being raised in abundance in war gardens throughout the entire section. So much of this produce has been planted that if a large proportion of it is not preserved for winter use, the increase in garden production will not go to great benefit in maintaining the food supply.

One of the demonstrators will be Miss McDonald, head of the Home Economics extension work at State college.

UNIONTOWN MAN WITH PERSHING IN FRANCE

George Weimer of Uniontown is one of Fayette county's sons with General Pershing in France. His mother, Miss Jonnie Weimer, received a cablegram on Saturday announcing his safe arrival.

MOTOR MIXUPS IN PROFUSION SUNDAY BUT NONE ARE HURT

No Serious Accidents But Collisions Are Numerous in the City.

FORD ROADSTER IS BURNED

Mass of Wreckage Is All That Remains of Car; Touring Car Loses a Wheel; Driver Arrested After Colliding With Truck at Corner Leavos a Forfeit.

Although there were many motor mixups and minor accidents on Sunday, no one was hurt in and about Connellsville, although some narrow escapes were reported.

The biggest loss was that of a Ford roadster, which was burned up, seemingly after going over the hill near the Works farm beyond Fuebner's. The machine was noticed by many automobile parties as they passed. How it caught fire is a mystery. A mass of wreckage was all that remained. One good wheel without a tire, was the only section left undamaged. There were no license plates on the machine and the owner is not known.

Several collisions occurred in the city, two at the corner of Apple and Pittsburgh streets and others at the corner of Fairview avenue and Pittsburgh streets. At the corner of Apple street a Hummobile and Dodge car came together about 5:30 o'clock. The Hummobile was being driven by a girl and running south on Pittsburgh street. The other car came east out of Apple street. Both blew horns and were aware of the other's approach. The Dodge could not be stopped before it ran into Pittsburgh street and to keep away from it the Hummobile was turned east into Apple. There was no room enough for the Hummobile to pass and the cars met at an angle. The Dodge had the axle and the left side badly bent but the Hummobile suffered no damage.

Several times during the day machines had narrow escapes from colliding at this corner. In fact, during the early part of the evening, passing cars were brought to stops within only a few inches of each other. The need of a traffic cop is apparent.

Isaac Goodman, driving a Packard, smashed into J. N. Trump, driving his truck, at Fairview avenue and Pittsburgh streets yesterday. The Goodman car had a smashed tool box, and was otherwise damaged. Goodman was driving on the wrong side of the street, according to Patrolman John Barnes, continued on Page two.

TAP RICH FIELD

Local Man Developing Fine Manganese Deposits.

What government experts declare to be one of the richest manganese ore deposits in the United States has been opened by R. B. Miller, near Bluefield, Mercer county, West Virginia. Mr. Miller, who is a brother of J. P. K. Miller, late chief engineer of the H. C. Frick Coke company, and also a brother of Arthur P. Miller, formerly superintendent of the Lisenburg No. 3 plant of the same company, and later superintendent of the Republic Iron & Steel company, has spent upwards of 20 years in securing control of about 80,000 acres of mountain land in the vicinity of Bluefield. The greater part of it is believed to be rich in manganese deposits which are estimated to have a value of $100,000,000.

The great value of this property was brought to public notice only recently when Miller appealed to federal authorities because the railroad company, upon whose line the property is located, had shut off his supply of cars.

Arthur P. Miller, brother of the discoverer of the manganese deposits, has recently been elected president of the Blue Ridge Fuel company of Charleston, W. Va. This company has acquired 1,400 acres of coal at Groves, Clay county, which is being developed under the direction of President Miller. For the present Mr. Miller has his headquarters and residence at Cassaway, W. Va., but will probably move to Charleston when the mine development work at Groves is completed.

The company has acquired 4,700 feet of river front and a concrete wall 25 feet in thickness at the base and 50 feet high will be constructed. The construction of a large water pumping works has already been started on the site. The first units of the plant will be two tube mills. A town will be erected in connection with the plant.

stone corner to the scene of the accident.

Martin Hustock of Dunbar township, 21 years old, was admitted to the Uniontown hospital last evening for treatment of a lacerated leg suffered when a motorcycle which he was riding collided with an automobile. His injuries are not serious.

A touring car bound for Uniontown lost a left rear wheel on the brick road about a mile this side of Lisenburg No. 2 about 8 o'clock last night. The wheel rolled off the road into the tall grass of the left side and occupants of the machine sought vainly for it until dark.

The garbage truck and another machine came together at the corner of Pittsburgh street and Fairview avenue but neither was damaged.

In Dunbar, the R. J. McGee store truck, driven by Arthur Polysky, got beyond control, and crashed into the porch of the Millhouse home on Railroad street yesterday. Both car and porch were damaged slightly.

COLONEL THATCHER MAY CUT THIS CITY OFF HIS NEW ROUTE

Displeased That "Don Didn't" Enter Him Better, He Drives Away.

The awful secret is out. Conneltsville is not to be on Colonel Charles W. Thatcher's Washington highway. And it's all Conneltsville's fault, too. Colonel Thatcher, like Burks, was "willin'" but the people of the city did not awake when opportunity knocked. When the colonel became cognizant of this he did a little knocking of another kind.

It came about this way. When the colonel, whose feelings, it appears, are very sensitive, made his celebrated address from the top of his ramshackle backboard on Friday night here, he laid great stress upon the hospitable treatment he had received all over the country. He told of the fine homes in which he had been a guest and of the swell hotels he had honored with his presence at no cost to Colonel Thatcher. His listeners thought there was a catch in this, and so it proved, there was. Almost the last thing the colonel said was that he had been royally entertained at some town westward, recognized in him a sort of messenger come to inspire the people of a nation to the point of making every copypath into a boulevard. Then the colonel decided. He had cast forth his bait. He went and stood on the corner watchfully waiting, presumably for some one to invite him to be his guest at the best hotel in the city.

No one came. This so exasperated the waiting colonel that he again mounted the top of his backboard and told what remained of his audience a few things about Conneltsville. Then he drove off to Uniontown. How he fared there is not known.

Buy Your Car Now, Dealers Warn, For Higher Prices Are Coming

"Buy Your Car Now" is the slogan of Connellsville automobile dealers for the coming week. The majority of the dealers have cars for immediate delivery so there will be no delay in your getting the "new car." The weather is ripe for touring, with the roads in good shape, and the country is calling for you to get out and see the big crops which the farmers are raising to reduce the "cost of living" problem.

BUY IT NOW—Don't put off the enjoyment of getting your part of the summer's sunshine—Don't be deceived by the false prospect of lower prices. Car prices are not going down—they are going up!

An automobile will give you more time for work, and more time for play—in fact increase your efficiency ten-fold. It will enable you to enjoy the advantages of city life and country life—to do your duty by your family. Today, the car makes the week-end or cross-country tour a comparatively inexpensive pleasure.

IN the grim business of war the motor car has played an important part. The automobile business of the nation is the one greatest industry in the world—except War. These great war times have demonstrated to a marked degree the necessity of the automobile to the army. We have evidence of this every day in the constant use made of cars by the army men in camp. Only the other day the United States Government announced it would buy 74,000 new cars for the army!

Motor Cars today are such efficiency increasers that business not only demands them, but cannot do without them. In these days we must learn to increase our efficiency to the utmost—each must do double duty—his own and the work of the neighbor who has gone to the front. The car helps us to do this. There are countless ways in which every individual can use a car to advantage—in nearly every case the car bought for pleasure becomes an absolute necessity.

Car prices are not going to be lower—the reverse is true—they are going higher. You will find in the newspaper columns announcements of several increases in price on the part of car manufacturers, and many others are planning to increase them before July is over—SO BUY YOUR CAR DURING "BUY YOUR CAR NOW" WEEK—July 8-15.

MATERIALS are costing more, better cars are being built and today the prices are lower than they are likely to be later on. Don't wait for your car, thinking that you can buy it cheaper after a while. You'll surely be disappointed if you do.

If you own an old car, this is the week to sell it and get the new one, for during these summer days your time is too valuable and your pleasure is worth too much to you and your family to have the day spoiled by working on the old car under a tree along the roadside, when you might be having a day's frolic. The new car, in accordance with your station in life, will cost you less in the upkeep.

The dealer who handles your favorite car has you listed—he knows you are in the market for a car. Call him up this week and let him demonstrate the car to you. Then buy, and you'll have the car for your business needs and your family's pleasure. There are months of good driving weather ahead of you on the calendar.

TODAY we are a country rich with good crops, plenty of money, and more to come. Right here in Connellsville you and I are going to get our share of it. Every man, woman and child who wants to work is on the job. Prosperity is here with you—and this week is the time to show Uncle Sam that you will promote patriotism and at the same time pay yourself a profit by not "holding back" but by "Buying Your Car Now"—this week—July 8-15.

We are proud of our automobile industry. This "BUY YOUR CAR NOW WEEK" is a campaign of education and expansion—this week, we dealers whose names are signed to this advertisement are going to show and prove to you your need for a car—your need in your business—and your need for your family's pleasure.

Three million motor cars throb to the profit of their owners today. Three million "recommended" cars clip coupons of power and success for the men who use them. The business men of the country, profiting by the lessons of the past, will prove their patriotism by lining up for this campaign. Remember—be not deceived by thinking prices will go lower—You'll lose weeks of pleasure—and be out of pocket several dollars.

PRICE REGULATION BY AGREEMENT INSTEAD OF DICTATION.

If the government insists, as seems to be the purpose, and intent, as expressed through action of Congress, to attempt to control by legislative enactment the production, price, distribution and transportation of every product of the United States, it is facing a tremendous if not well-nigh impossible task. It may be feasible to enact certain regulatory measures, general in character and equally general in their results, but an effective solution of the problem—a solution that will promote increased production, equitable distribution and quickened movement—will come about only by a more popular and more generally acceptable method than the exercise of autocratic power by the hands of newly created commissions and the like.

It is by mutual cooperation and agreement between producers and the government that a plan of voluntary regulation can be effected such as will prove successful and satisfactory. The possibilities of this method have already been strikingly demonstrated by the coal price adjustment brought about through the wise counsel of Secretary Lane of the Department of the Interior. Except for the objection of Secretary Baker this plan would now be in complete operation and the production of coal would have already felt a stimulus instead of the halt that has come because of the probability that the Administration may still demand that Congress carry out the price regulation campaign to the extreme limit. This Congress seems disposed to do and without giving any consideration whatever to the fact that there must of necessity be a war time profit on war time business, otherwise there will not be a war time production of articles or materials, as the Cleveland Daily from Trade aptly observes when saying:

"Legislation now pending in the Senate is supposedly designed to encourage production not only of foodstuffs, grains, etc., but of everything else required in the prosecution of war. But it promises to have the opposite effect. It will have a tendency to decrease production, and if that does come about, the government will hear a storm of protest from the people such as it has not heard before in its history. Decrease of production would mean disaster, and certainly now, above all times, the government needs every ounce of strength it can muster."

The legislation under way, however, perhaps will pass, carrying with it authority to control the prices of numberless things whose prices are to be fixed by administrators named by the President. It is regrettable the problem of regulation was not solved through closer understanding between the business interests of the country and the government. That would have hushed the voice of the political demagogue and would have meant much to the nation.

"The outlook for a satisfactory settlement of prices for supplies for the government and the general public is not a cheerful one. It would not be surprising to see it break down more quickly even than many of its opponents anticipate."

In the consideration Washington has given to the price question little or no importance has been attached to the influence of non-producing brokers and speculators on the situation. To the operations, rapacity and greed of these agencies, more than to any other, is due the outcry against high prices, especially of foodstuffs and fuel. The investigations by the Federal Trade Commission have established definitely enough for Congress to understand that it is the price speculators who have been acting as the retailers of the consumer, and not what the producer has received, that has been, in the language of Secretary Baker, "exorbitant, unjust and oppressive."

It was to curb the activities of these price-boasters that the Administration long ago gave its pledge. Deceiving the pledge would be kept the public has patiently looked to the Administration for relief. Promise of such relief is held out in the whole-sale price control legislation now before Congress. This, as our Cleveland contemporary points out, will not result in a satisfactory settlement, because one of the prime purposes of regulation will be defeated through a decreased instead of an increased production.

The voluntary agreement upon coal prices had as its basis a stimulation of production, the establishment of a fair price and a fixed limit to the commission of the jobber. Under this arrangement the coal consuming public would know just what coal would cost, even when buying through a jobber, and would also know that the resources of the whole industry were back of a movement and in cooperation with the government to speed-up production and distribution. If the same principles were applied to a price regulation of other articles, and similar restrictions placed upon the non-producing distributors, and the energies of the government directed to correcting any abuses that might develop, we would have a system of control wholly American in character and in accord with the American spirit and way of doing things. Such a method of regulation would insure the maintenance of reasonable prices, yield a fair profit to producers, guarantee the continuance of high wages to labor, result in maximum production and preserve a harmonious relation between the industries and the government—something regulation by autocratic dictation will not do.

FOOLING BOTH.

One does not need to be an opponent of prohibition to see in the amendment to the Administration's much vaunted food bill a somewhat grotesque attempt to accomplish by "rider" legislation what Congress should have had the courage and frankness to propose as a straight prohibition measure.

By a vote of 15 to 37 in the Senate on Saturday there was added to the original bill an amendment to prohibit the manufacture of whisky during the war and directing the President to take over for the government all stocks of distilled spirits in bond at the cost of manufacture, plus 10 per cent.

This provision being mandatory taking over the 250,000,000 gallons of spirits in bond, if none are removed before the law becomes effective, at the estimated cost of 75 cents per gallon plus 10 per cent, will entail an outlay of $206,250,000. In addition to this the government will lose the war tax of $2.20 per gallon and the existing tax of $1.10 per gallon, amounting to $855,000,000, or an aggregate for the liquor and the taxes of $1,031,250,000 in buying up the bonded stocks.

In anticipation of this action by Congress it is said that liquor speculators have already removed large quantities of whisky from bond and advanced the price sharply to both wholesalers and retailers. The amendment adopted by the Senate cannot affect the further removal of bonded whisky before the food bill becomes a law, which the speculators are planning to do. By paying the tax upon it the owners of the stocks now in bond may have the entire reserve supply available for consumption after the new law becomes operative. At the present rate of consumption this supply is sufficient to last three years or longer.

The Senate having refused to endorse the prohibition of the manufacture of light wines and beer, in which action the House will doubtless concur, it would appear that the Administration's so-called regulation of food supply, by stopping the use of grain in making distilled spirits only, will be to give still larger opportunity to the speculators to make large sums of money in re-sale to wholesalers and retailers, and meantime the nation's war drinks will be beer, wine and whisky, as usual.

Thus Congress and the Administration, under the pretense of regulating the food supply, have fooled the Prohibitionists by discriminating against distilled spirits in favor of vinous and malt, and fooled the food conservationists by diverting from liquor manufacture grain used in making distilled spirits, but placing no restrictions on the use of fruits or grains for the manufacture of wine and beer. Under the circumstances the average citizen will be not considered obtuse if he fails to see wherein "rider" legislation has accomplished much either for prohibition or food conservation.

ROUND UP THE PRICE PIRATES.

While Washington is stirred to renewed activity in running down German spies, why not round up another set of enemies?

Information is now in the hands of members of Congress that the distributors of various necessities of the poor and sick alike, as demanded by wholesalers and retailers of these goods immediately raise the prices on stocks bought at before-the-war prices.

The penalty prescribed for failure or refusal to join in this concerted robbery of consumers is the blacklist; the wholesaler or retailer who sticks to the old prices on the old stocks of goods is notified that he is considered an undesirable customer and therefore his order cannot be filled. It is estimated that on a single prime necessity of life on sale in every grocery store in the land, these price pirates, if they have their way, will add more than a million dollars to the selling price of the stock now on the shelves which was bought at the prices ruling before the war.

Here is a chance for a form of control which can be made operative without any pretext as to its purpose, and which will require nothing more than a little well-directed and energetic activity on the part of the prosecuting officers of the government.

With 75 women and children the victim of the latest air raid on London, the Kaiser will have some more decorations to confer "for valor and glorious achievement!"

Since the Vatican has had the temerity to refuse Germany's demand for the recall of Cardinal Mercier, the prelate-prince of Belgium, we may expect an air raid on the Eternal City in reprisal.

With 10 per cent of its membership going to the front, the medical staff of the U. S. Field Artillery is doing rather more than its bit.

Every time we pay our taxes we are reminded that we are richer, or poorer, than we were ten years ago.

The First City of Fayette is first among the towns of Fayette to be placed on the map of the Washington Highway.

Accompanying the Kaiser.

It would be just like Bill Hohenzollern to blame his reversals on the weather. But he would have been defeated just as badly and as certainly if the weather had been different. Besides probably the weather man is fitting him in this life to endure the temperature that is coming to him in the next.

Teddy has Nothing on Col. Barnett. Just to show President Wilson that Teddy doesn't have anything on him, Colonel Barnett has offered to raise a regiment for service in France.

OVEREATING.

Overeating is a dangerous habit which is caused by allowing the appetite to roam at will without a bridge on. If a law could be passed requiring the owner of every appetite to drive it with a Mexican bill, people would listen to the after-dinner speaker with more interest and the members of the medical fraternity would have to take in washing in order to pay the rent.

In plainer days overeating was not practised to any great extent. The six o'clock dinner of nine courses and a supper had not been invented, and there was little incentive for a man to go out and become thoroughly congested with free victuals. There was not so much variety in the food line, either. There would be less overeating today if people had to face the cold, still remains of a batch of corn-meal mush three times a day, as was so often the case with our forefathers.

Overeating is generally accompanied by a deep sense of melancholy, located near the waistband, and will never be confused with the toothache by one who has had both in a firm and decided manner. The stomach is highly productive of overeating on a mush, and should never be held on the night preceding a feast. The best time to overeat is on Saturday, which will allow Sunday to be observed as a day of fasting and prayer, as was originally intended.

Overeating is a fertile cause of long-distance dyspepsia, which hangs around the stomach like a bad odor.

One of the most discouraging things in the life of a sensitive housewife is to have her husband go to a party and come home with a headache and a bad disposition. When a woman has much married women have to put up with in this line, it is to consider that her husband is getting thicker than a drug store in Kansas.

Rippling Rhymes

WESTWARD HO.

In my old auto, worn and rusty, I jog along the highway dust and the hills of Colorado provide a cool and grateful shadow. For birds must have a brief vacation from their noisy fussing. Through many little grades I wander and often stop, some coils to tighten, my auto to retighten, and some oil to change. And everywhere I hear men singing, with fervid patriotic feeling. Their optimism is so exciting I have excuse for frequent halting. "Through out this war," a wholly loyal soldier's hold the allies level. "I hear the angels sing," he says, "in fact, he beats them all at playing; it surely looked as though the winner in the end came out a winner. But now that we have grabbed our share, and deflected the lightning from the neighbors, the outlook will be pretty chilly for Hindenburg and Sissy Bily. As a people, take no pleasure in squandering our blood and treasure, but when we're driven into scrap, you bet that something's bound to happen and we'll be back again. We'll be wishing they'd pulled at war and gone a-fishing."

Fayette County Gas Co.

PITTSBURGH, PA., June 25th, 1917.

To our Patrons:

The following letter from the Hope Natural Gas Company, from whom this Company purchases its supply of gas for domestic purposes, is self explanatory:

HOPE NATURAL GAS COMPANY

Pittsburgh.

June 19, 1917.

John G. Pew,

Vice President.

Fayette County Gas Company,

Attention Mr. Harry C. Reeser, Secretary,

Pittsburg, Pa.

Gentlemen:

This company begs to bring to your notice that it is quite probable that the supply of gas which this company will have available for delivery to your company at the State line in the coming winter will not be sufficient to meet all of the requirements of your domestic consumers on extremely cold days. This notice is given to you in order that you may be advised of the situation, and if you find that you do not have enough gas available to meet your requirements, you may make known to your consumers that it would be advisable for them to provide an emergency fire-place and other fuel sufficient to take the place of gas during the coldest days. You understand that some of the companies which have first draft upon the resources of this company have already taken such action. We would be pleased to advise you if anything occurs to change our estimate, but from the fact that it is so difficult to secure drilling machinery, experienced labor, pipe and materials, for our operations, we are handicapped in the development and testing of territory.

Yours very truly,

HOPE NATURAL GAS COMPANY,

John G. Pew,

Vice-President.

Pursuant to the above this Company deems it proper and timely to warn its patrons of the probable shortage of gas during the cold weather next winter, and to advise that an auxiliary appliance to use fuel other than gas, be installed for emergency purposes.

FAYETTE COUNTY GAS COMPANY,

H. C. Reeser, Secretary.

THREE RING SHOW

Coop & Lent's Circus, Here Wednesday, is a Fine Attraction.

There is "music in brooks and sermons in stones and good in everything," the poet sang, but the best thing in the circus is claimed by Coop & Lent's Enormous Shows United, with their three-ring circus, music and menagerie, which comes to Connelleville on Wednesday, July 11. The claim for "bigness and betterness" which puts them a stride ahead of other shows is based on:

A clean show for the women and children. Education as well as entertainment for young and old.

These two things Coop & Lent believe are monumental in building the business of making people relax from the ordinary cares of life and furnishing the kiddies with fun unlimited.

Besides having three rings going full tilt without a moment's cessation, with wonderful acts in the sawdust rings and more than a score of clowns and aerial acts that thrill like an aviation meet, they have provided menagerie replace with specimens of wild beasts of the jungle. They furnish not only an opportunity for school children to learn something of zoology they could not learn from the text book, but afford parents the opportunity for brushing up their knowledge of natural history through a periscope as it were—the eyes of the all-inquisitive child. The menagerie feature which is part of the Coop & Lent's Shows entertainment is one that is worth a half hour of study.

While the educational angle is one of the big features of this circus, the entertainment has not been forgotten. More than a score of clowns dressed in more barbed garments than the mind of a rainy afternoon kid could conceive, keep the sawdust circuit almost alive with their red-hot fun.

There's one serious side of the Coop & Lent's Show this year not to be overlooked. It's the grand and inspiring military tournament, which will thrill Young America as only the thought of National Defense can.

Why the Undertaker Chose the Neal Way.

A Story of Drink Habit Conquered at the Neal Institute.

"I've laid so many away who went to death through drink," declared an Ohio undertaker at the Neal Institute the other day, "that the thought struck me the other day that by drinking I was simply hurrying along to my own funeral. I'm through and came here to get rid of 'the thirst'."

And three days of the Neal Treatment sent him back home to business with all alcoholic desire absolutely gone.

It is one thing to make up your mind to quit drink, but quite another thing to really quit. The "call of the thirst" is too strong.

Every drinker is carrying in his system the poison of alcohol. It is this poison which causes desire for more drink. You've got to get rid of the poison before you lose the desire.

That is just what the Neal Treatment does—neutralizes and eliminates all alcoholic poison and in three days' time changes love for drink into loathing for anything alcoholic.

There are no dangerous hypodermic injections—just a harmless vegetable remedy, taken internally.

There is no publicity. Names are not revealed. You can enjoy all desired privacy. Your own investigation is urged. Over 5,500 victims of drink have been successfully treated during the past few years.

PAULINE FREDERICK
FAMOUS ACTRESS—PARAMOUNT STAR

THE PARAMOUNT

"The Duchess of Dumb," a five act Metro feature in which Emily Wehlen, the fascinating screen star, is seen in the leading role and a great comedy, are being presented today. Society people as well as prominent screen stars, appear in the support of Miss Wehlen. Many of the scenes were made in the famous winter resorts of Florida, at Palm Beach, St. Augustine and Jacksonville, and guests at the fashionable hotels displayed the greatest of interest in the picture. Miss Wehlen plays Clover Ames, who is a drudge for her aunt. Clover has to be obedient and bottle washer. She dreams of future grandeur and her dreams come true. She inherits money and goes to a fashionable winter resort to spend it in one grand time. She has a fashionable society at her feet. One of her "lovers" is a young man who holds a position that is nothing but a ribbon clerk. However he isn't and that fact forms the foundation for one of the most attractive screen stories yet produced by Metro. Miss Wehlen, who is known as the best exponent of fashions appearing for the screen, wears gorgeous gowns in the different scenes. Tomorrow Pauline Frederick and Thomas Meighan famous Paramount stars, will be featured in "Her Better Self," Wednesday, "The Clockwork," a five act Triangle production with Charles Ray in the leading role, will be presented.

SEASON THEATRE.

The Castle Square quartet heads the bill at the Season theatre today, followed by the Elite Society dances, White and Eller, and the "Fashion Plate" Girls make up the rest of the musical comedy which comes heralded as the best. Connelleville has had for a long time, Mrs. Fred Robbins, manager, has secured an orchestra which will be a credit to the Season, each musician is a No. 1. This is the only house having an orchestra. Now the Season is strictly a union house, stage hands and orchestra and operator being all union men—These men were hard to get, but no effort was spared to secure them. "The Neglected Wife" serial No. 2, and a beautiful Butterfly screen drama of four reels finishes up a program that will please and delight all. Everything refined and clean.

THE ARCADE.

Jack Corbett's Dream Girls will hold the boards at the Arcade Theatre this week in three delightful little musical comedies. Clever comedians, classy chorists, catchy numbers, the kind you like to whistle. For the first time Connelleville theatre goers will have an opportunity to hear vaudeville's premier female blackface female comedian. It is said that there is but one woman as good as Vallie or Plozie, the former having made a big hit at the Arcade some time ago. This company has been the sensation of the Sun Circuit, having played continuously 100 weeks. This company is a guaranteed attraction and is a positive glee destroyer.

OUTRICH THEATRE.

"LITTLE MISS FORTUNE," a five reel Art drama, featuring demure Maria Swann. You will be interested in the life of the little orphan girl who wanted to be an actress. She was a mischievous orphan full of life and spirit and fun. They made life so miserable for her that she ran away and after a rather trying time, at last saw her name in electric lights above a Broadway theatre. This wholesome story will be especially appealing to all who like clean photoplays. Tomorrow "Hinton's Double," a Gold Rooster drama. "The Scripture's Tooth," Friday and Saturday Mary Pickford in "A Romance of the Roadways."

THOUGHT RAW MEAT NEEDED.

Schiff Peaved When Walling Put Up a Job on Him.

Three years ago George Walling, Jimmy Chubb, Johnny Schiff and other Yankee boxers were training in Los Angeles, preparatory to their invasion of Australia. Schiff was a more kid at the time, and he watched Walling with much amazement and admiration as he went through his work.

Johnny asked to put the gloves on with Walling and at the conclusion of their bout inquired: "How is it, Joe, you are so tough and can stand all that punishment in the ring? How do you do it?"

"Easy," replied Walling. "It's like this: My doctor advised me to eat a couple of pounds of raw meat every day. I've been sending over to the packing house for it."

That afternoon Schiff ambled over to one of the big packing houses and returned with three pounds of raw beef. Before he had a chance to start in on it one of the boxers asked him: "Next afternoon Walling couldn't understand why the little featherweight waded into him so fiercely when they staged another practice battle."

MUST HAVE HORSE SENSE.

Comiskey Says It's Fundamental of Successful Ball Playing.

Horse sense, in the opinion of Comiskey, is the fundamental of successful baseball. Natural ability to hit the ball and field well is fine and dandy, but the owner of the White Sox gives one instruction to every manager who works for him. And it is the same rule he wants carried out that he followed himself when piloting ball clubs back in the early days. Never allow a bag to be uncovered is the rule. And it includes home plate. Here is Comiskey's logic: "When the ball is hit there is no reason for a bag to be left uncovered longer than momentarily. If one of the basemen is holding a ball or re-laying a throw there's a pitcher and a shortstop to cover the bag. The men should not be elsewhere, because a base runner is not going to cross the infield or run into the outfield. He is going from base to base consecutively by the shortest possible route. When those chances for putouts are instantaneous. Full observation of this rule will almost keep a poor club in the first division."

BASEBALL AFTER WAR.

Manager Callahan of Pirates Looks For Big Boom in Game.

Manager Jimmy Callahan of the Pittsburgh Pirates believes that after the war is over and the various countries have had a chance to straighten themselves out and commence living again international baseball will be a possibility. Says Jimmy:

"When we played our games in London with the round the world teams a few years ago the Britishers did not care much for the sport. Ground balls and the hitting of them did not interest them much, not nearly so much as fly balls which were caught. It didn't matter if it was a foul ball; they would applaud those and the hitting that went with them. Balls of that sort had greater features, I suppose. Running bases were not so much inclined to laugh at and treat as a joke. I think that after the war if we take two teams over there things will be different and that there will be a grand opportunity to put in some hits for international baseball. Why not? It is far ahead of every other game that's played."

Circumstantial Evidence. "What makes you think all women hate each other?" "Because a woman so seldom brings up a son fit to be another woman's husband."—Exchange.

WALTERS PROVES ANOTHER SCHALK

Yanks' Catcher Rated One of the Game's Greatest.

MADE GOOD FROM START

Dangerous at Bat, Fast on the Bases, Accurate Thrower—Has Just Passed Twenty-fifth Birthday, but Never Will Be Big, at Least During His Playing Career.

Alfred John was too unwieldy a name for Walters, catcher on the New York American league club. He looked upon handling it all as ridiculous, like the tall trying to shake the dog. So he dropped it to plain, unvarnished Al, writes W. J. MacBeth in the New York Tribune.

That's just the style of Bill Donovan's grand little catcher. That's why he is the grand little catcher. He gets out from under everything that is a handicap. You'd think to size him up in uniform that Al Walters was too small and too frail—no, not to be a catcher, but to be a good catcher. And thinking that you'd fool yourself, just as a whole lot of major league scouts down in the Texas sticks fooled themselves. It ever that old adage held good about choice goods in small parcels it goes double for this kid backstop of the Yankees.

Smart baseball men who see Walters in action predict a wonderful future for the kid. Already the writers are beginning to compare him with Ray Schalk of the White Sox.

Al Walters is one of the few—the very, very few—who established themselves permanently in the affections of home fans in their first big league game. Hal Chase, with the Yankees back in 1903, did the same thing. Chase's States later repeated with the Browns. From his first game in the fall of 1915 till this day nothing but universal praise has been showered upon the little Yankee backstop by New York fandom.

Walters made himself the very first day he got a chance to catch a big league game. Strangely enough, the self same Schalk was fitted against him that afternoon. Paddy Baumann, second baseman for the Yankees, made a wonderful stop off Buck Weaver but threw wildly past Walter Pipp Weaver, dashing on toward second, found the ball in Peckinpaugh's hands awaiting him before he got within twenty feet of the station. Walters backed up the throw for one of the prettiest plays to which Yankee rooters had been treated in many years. It wasn't the custom for the backstop to back throws when Ed Sweeney was first catcher of the Yankees.

Bob Gilkes, scout for the New York Americans in the southwest, sent Al Walters to the Yankees in the fall of 1915. After two seasons with Saskatoon the vigorous youth graduated to the Vinco club of the Texas league. Gilkes had no sooner clapped eyes on him than he got busy on the wires and through the mails. Before the fourth of July he had the Yankee office all stirred up with his good reports on the kid. The head office sent one of its chief scouts to watch the youngster. The report of the latter was favorable in its way, but intimated Walters was too light for major company.

"You'll make the mistake of your life if you let this fellow get away from you," Gilkes wrote Captain T. L. Huston. "I don't care if he is little in size and weight; he's the biggest thing in ability you ever saw. Within three years he'll be the greatest catcher of the game. He'll make the people forget Ray Schalk."

That last sentence clinched it with Huston. The White Sox were at the Polo grounds the day Gilkes' letter arrived. That afternoon Schalk did almost everything to the Yankees that imagination can picture. He got three or four hits, including some extra bases, pilfered a few bags and stopped the Yankee runners in their tracks.

"Get Walters right away," the captain wired Gilkes that night.

KAUFF CAN JUGGLE
CUD LIKE OLD TIMER

SPEAKER THREE YEARS OLDER THAN TY COBB

Tris Didn't Reach Pinnacle Until After He Was Thirty-two Years Old.

The duel between Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb presents one bizarre angle that few have ever considered.

One writer has even gone so far as to say that age is beginning to tell on Ty and that "the younger Speaker has overhauled the veteran at last."

The ultimate details are somewhat different. In place of being young, Speaker is three years older than Ty, or nearly so, and it has therefore been the older man who overhauled the younger.

While Cobb is younger than Speaker, he had served three years under the main tent before Tris broke in. Ty entered major league service at eighteen, whereas Tris was twenty-five before he donned the harness of big league service. When Speaker had passed his thirty-second year and was still averaging 25 to 30 points back of his Georgia rival each campaign it was taken for granted that he had missed his chance. Exceedingly few athletes begin to improve after thirty-two. Thirty is generally the spot where the skidding begins and the decline sets in.

For two years after this landmark the irrefragable Tris suddenly absorbed a new grip on youth and, after trailing for seven campaigns, dashes on past his main rival and holds that advantage for eight months' actual combat, embracing 180 games.

Speaker has always been a great ball player—one of the greatest—but he upset tradition and the pop-eyed dope by delaying his drive to the main peak at the age of thirty-two and holding it at thirty-four. It is no certainty that he will maintain the crest this year, but he is well on his way, with no evidence of any slump in sight, a better ball player at thirty-three and thirty-four than he ever was between twenty-one and thirty.

CANTILLONS GET RICH ESTATE

Minneapolis Baseball Men Will Receive Nearly $75,000 Each.

Michael B. Cantillon, president of the Minneapolis club of the American association, went to Sacramento, Cal., to become executor of the estate of Patrick Dowling, western gold pioneer, who died there recently.

The estate, said to include pieces of real estate as well as $120,000 in cash, is to be divided among Mr. Cantillon, his brother Joseph of Minneapolis, his brother James of Eagle Grove, Ind., and one sister. It was reported that the two Minneapolis baseball men would receive nearly $75,000 each.

Best Swimmers in World. American swimmers hold a majority of the speed swimming records of the world. Langer, Ross, Vollmer, Ted Cain and Kahanamoku, all Americans, can outswim all rivals at any and all racing distances, while Olga Dorfner, Gertrude Artell and Bessie Ryan of Philadelphia, Claire Galligan of New York, Frances Cowell and Dorothy Burns of San Francisco and Thelma Durby of St. Louis represent a team of American mermaids good enough to compete against the foremost women swimmers of the world.

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

By S. W. STRAUS
President American Society for Thrift

Considerable food economy can be effected in the average American home today if efforts are made to increase the consumption of rice in preference to bread and potatoes. Rice also is a product that should be encouraged in this country because it can be made one of our most valuable crops. Apparently Americans are taking more readily to rice. The crop last year in this country amounted to 40,000,000 bushels against 28,000,000 bushels in 1915 and 25,000,000 bushels for the five years' average from 1911 to 1915 inclusive.

Rice ordinarily can be obtained at prices which make it, in comparison with other foods, an economical addition to the diet. As a staple diet it may be boiled and used instead of potatoes at any meal, or it may be seasoned with tomato juice, soup stock or curry powder, onions, or other seasoning materials. It also may be used as a cereal for breakfast, boiled in milk and sweetened, or eaten with butter and salt. Dried fruit, such as dates or raisins, may be cooked with it.

Cold boiled rice, mixed with pancake or muffin batter of wheat, makes a pleasing addition to these foods. Cold boiled rice also may be used with leftover meat, chicken, or fish in making croquettes, or with milk, sugar, eggs, and other ingredients for puddings and desserts. Corn meal is another food the use of which should be encouraged by Americans. It is one of the cheapest foods one can secure and may be used in a variety of ways. It costs about half as much per pound as wheat flour and one-third to one-fourth as much as most cereals.

The Department of Agriculture is suggesting that people buy hand mills, which can be procured for from $2.50 to $5.00 each, and grind their own corn into meal. This method will not only be the means of saving them much money, but it will provide one of the most wholesome foods that can be obtained.

Besides the old-fashioned mush and milk made of 3/4 cups of water, a teaspoonful of salt and cup of milk, there are endless numbers of dishes that can be made, such as fried mush, mush with fruit, mush with cheese, fish cakes, corn meal bread, griddle cakes and puddings.

A very good bread may be made of corn meal and wheat flour half and half.

By following these simple suggestions any family can easily cut down its food bill several cents a day without sacrificing anything whatever in palatability or food value.

OLD BASEBALL STARS TO PLAY

Anson, Comiskey, Callahan and Other Veterans in Benefit Game.

Several promising "young recruits," including Charley Comiskey, Addison Anson and Fred Pfeffer, are expected to be given a tryout in a baseball game which will feature the Red Cross field day to be held at Woughman park, Chicago, July 31.

The two clubs will be made up mostly of stars of the old National league and old American association. On the former team will be Anson, Pfeffer, Pete O'Brien, Mort Schemm, Jack McCormick, Frank Satter, Eddie Hughes, William Gels, Frank McNichols, Joe Bidwell and Bob Swettzer. In the line-up of the latter will be Comiskey, Tom Dawson, Nat Hudson, Jake Stahl, Tony Mullane, Adolph Spillman, Matty Zimmerman, Charley Redding, Jimmy Callahan and George Moriarty.

Joins Professional Ranks.

Another good college ball player will join the ranks of the professionals. Edward Ridley, captain of the Indiana university nine, has agreed to report to the Louisville team of the American association for a tryout. In response to a telegram from Fred Beale, Louisville pitcher who last year coached the Indiana ball team requesting him to report to Manager Clymer, Ridley wired he would report. Ridley is one of the best pitchers in the west

PETEY DINK—They Didn't Understand the New One

By C. A. VOIGHT

Copyright, 1914, by D. Appleton & Co.

"Please, Caroline," he protested, "please don't. I beg your pardon. I was a fool. I knew better. Don't go. Tell me the real reason. Now tell me. Was it that you couldn't care for Jim enough?"

"I like Mr. Pearson very much. I respect and admire him. But you don't love him. I see. Well, sadly, there's another one of my dreams gone to smash. However, you did just right, dearie. Feel that way, you couldn't marry him, of course."

"That was not the reason," she said in a low tone.

"Why?" he bent toward her. "What?" he cried. "That wasn't the reason, you say? You care for him?"

"She was silent."

"Do you?" he repeated gently. "And yet you sent him away. Why?"

"She faltered, tried to speak and then turned away. He put his arm about her and stroked her hair."

"Don't you cry, dearie," he begged. "I won't bother you any more. You can tell me some other time if you want to. Or you needn't tell me at all. It's all right; only don't cry."

"I haven't been so silly," she said. "I made up my mind to tell you everything and I shall. My not caring for Mr. Pearson was not my reason for refusing him. He would marry me, poor as I am. And perhaps I—perhaps I should say yes if things were different. I know I should say yes and be very, very happy. But I can't and I won't. I won't. I suppose you think I have been perfectly satisfied to let you take care of me and of my brother and give me a home and all that we needed and more, but I have not been contented with that, nor has Steve. He and I have made our plans, and we shall carry them out. We will leave college in two years and go to work in earnest. Before that time I shall be ready to touch. I have been studying with just that idea in view. I haven't told you before, uncle, but one of the domestic science teachers at the university is a girl I used to know slightly. She is going to be married next year, and if all goes well I may be appointed to her position when she leaves. Steve and I have planned it all. His salary at first will be small, and so will mine, but together we can earn enough to live somehow, and later on when he earns more perhaps we may be able to repay a little of all that you have given us. We shall try. I shall insist upon it."

"Caroline Warren, is that the reason you sent Jim away? Did you tell him that? Did you tell him you wouldn't marry him on account of me?"

"No, of course I did not," indignantly. "I told him I would not, and he thought of marriage. It was impossible. And it is. You know it is, Uncle Eliza."

"I don't know any such thing. If you want to make me happy, Caroline, you couldn't find a better way than to be Jim Pearson's wife. And you would be happy, too, you said so."

"But I am not thinking of happiness. It is my duty to you and to my own self respect. And not only that, but to Steve. Some one must provide a home for him."

"But you wouldn't have to leave him. Steve's future's all fixed. I've provided for Steve."

"What do you mean?"

"What I say," the captain was very much excited and for once completely off his guard. "I've had plans for Steve all along. He's got the first rate in that broker's office, hasn't he? When he's out of college I'm going to turn over your old place to him. It's my duty to you and to my own self respect. And not only that, but to Steve. Some one must provide a home for him."

"But you wouldn't have to leave him. Steve's future's all fixed. I've provided for Steve."

"What do you mean?"

"What I say," the captain was very much excited and for once completely off his guard. "I've had plans for Steve all along. He's got the first rate in that broker's office, hasn't he? When he's out of college I'm going to turn over your old place to him. It's my duty to you and to my own self respect. And not only that, but to Steve. Some one must provide a home for him."

When he's out of college I'm going to turn over your old place to him. It's my duty to you and to my own self respect. And not only that, but to Steve. Some one must provide a home for him."

"But you wouldn't have to leave him. Steve's future's all fixed. I've provided for Steve."

"What do you mean?"

"I've been studying housekeeping for almost a year," she said. "And they teach that—at school?" she demanded. "And take money for it? And call it school? My land! I guess I was brought up in a scientific household, then. I was the only girl in the family, and mother died when I was ten years old."

After dinner she consented to sit for a time, though not until she had donned her Sunday best, earrings and all. Captain Eliza and Sylvester sat with her, and the his disapproval in the sitting room blazed and roared so it had not since its owner left for his long sojourn in the city.

Caroline's mind was busy with the suspicion which her uncle's words concerning his future plans for Steve had aroused. She had thought of little else since she heard them. The captain did not mention the subject again. Possibly on reflection he decided that he had already said too much. And she asked no more questions. She determined not to question him—yet. She must think first and then ask some one else—Sylvester.

Her opportunity came the following morning, the day before Thanksgiving. After breakfast Captain Eliza went downtown to call on some acquaintances.

After the captain had gone Sylvester sat down before the fire in the sitting room to read a Boston newspaper. As he sat there Caroline entered and closed the door behind her. Miss Abigail was in the kitchen busy with preparations for the morning's chair padding.

The girl took the chair that occupied by the lawyer. He put down his paper and turned to her.

"Mr. Sylvester," she said. "I wish you would tell me something about the value of a seat on the stock exchange. What is the price of one?"

The lawyer looked at her in surprise. "The value of a seat on the stock exchange?" he repeated.

"Yes. What does it cost to buy one?"

He hesitated, wondering why she should be interested in that subject.

"But she kept her feelings hidden on her uncle's account. The captain was probably the happiest individual in the state of Massachusetts that morning. He hailed the train's approach to Sandwich as the entrance to Ostabie county, the promised land, and from that station on excitedly pointed out familiar landmarks and bits of scenery and buildings with the gusto and enthusiasm of a schoolboy."

At Denboro he pointed out Pete Shattuck's livery stable, where the horse and buggy came from which had been the means of transporting Graves and himself to South Denboro.

"Here," he cried, "see that fellow boddin' up the corner of the depot with his back, the one that's so broad in the back he has to draw in his breath after he can button his coat. That's Pete. You'd think he was too sleepy to care whether 'twas today or next week, wouldn't you? Well, if you was a summer boarder and wanted to hire a team you'd find Pete was awake and got up early. If a ten cent piece fell off the shelf in the middle of the night he'd hear it, though I've known him to sleep while the minister's barn burned down. The parson had been preaching against horse trading. Maybe that sermon was responsible for some of the morphia influence."

Sylvester was enjoying himself hugely. Captain Eliza's exuberant comments were great fun for him. "This is what I came for," he confided to Caroline. "I don't care if it rains or snows. I could sit and listen to your uncle for years and never tire. He's a wonder."

Dan, the captain's hired man, met them with the carriage at the station, and Miss Baker met them at the door of the Warren home. The exterior of the big, old-fashioned, rambling house was inviting and homelike in spite of the unpainted trim, and Caroline cheered up a bit when they turned in at the gate. Five minutes of Miss Abigail's society and all gloom disappeared. One could not be gloomy where Miss Abigail was. Her smile of welcome was so broad that, as her employer said, "it took in all outside and inside of Poughkeepsie Neck," a place which, he hastened to add, "was forgotten creation and his sort of happiness of itself since."

Abigail conducted Caroline to her room—old-fashioned, like the rest of the house, but cozy, warm and cheery—and, after helping in the removal of her baggage, seated her by both hands and took a long look at her face.

"You'll excuse my being so familiar on short acquaintance, dearie," she said, "but I've heard so much about you that I feel as if I knew you like own folks. And you are own folks, ain't you? Every one of us of Eliza's letters have had four pages of you to one of anything else. I believe you think New York was nothing but you and a whole lot of ten story houses. I declare, you're almost prettier than he said. May I kiss you? I'd like to."

She did, and they were friends at once.

The house and buildings were spotless in paint and whitewash; the yard was raked clean of every dead leaf and twig; the whole establishment was so neat that Caroline remarked upon it.

"It looks as if it had been scoured," she said.

"Um-hum," observed her uncle, with a gleam in his eye. "That's Abigail. She hates dirt worse than she does business, and that ain't sayin' a little. I tell her she'd sandpaper the weather vane if she could climb up to it. As 'tis, she stays below and superintends Dan while he does it."

Miss Baker had planned that her young guest should sit in state, with footstool and cushions, and she seemed to consider that the proper conduct for a former member of New York's best society. But Caroline refused to sit in the parlor and be "company." She insisted upon being "company."

She protested and declared there was nothing on earth to be done, but her guest insisted that if there was not she herself would sit. As Abigail would have soon thought of attending church without wearing her jet earrings as she would of sitting down before dinner, she gave in after awhile and permitted Caroline to help in arranging the table.

"Why, you do just rate!" she exclaimed in surprise. "You know where everything ought to go, just as if you'd been settin' table all your life. And you ain't, because Eliza wrote you used to keep hired help, two or three of 'em, all the time."

Caroline laughed.

"You must excuse me."

Sylvester interrupted quickly. "Caroline, Caroline," he said, "don't make any mistake. Don't mistake your uncle again. He is a good man, one of the best men I ever knew. Yes, and one of the wisest."

"Oh, Mr. Sylvester, please, now that I do know, now that you have told me so much, won't you tell me the rest, the reason and all of it? Please?"

The lawyer shook his head, regarding her with an expression of annoyance and reluctant admiration.

"Now that I've told you," he repeated. "I don't remember that I've told you anything."

"But you have. Not in words, perhaps, but you have told me. I know. Please go on and tell me all. If you don't," with determination, "I shall make Uncle Eliza tell me as soon as he comes. I shall."

Sylvester sighed. "Well, by George," he repeated feebly. "I'll tell you one thing, young woman, you're wasting your time. You should be looking for a husband. Any one who can lead a battle-scarred veteran of cross examination like myself into a trap and then spring it on him, as you have done, is gifted by Providence. I ought not to say another word on the subject," he declared emphatically. "What Captain Warren will say to me when he finds this out is unpleasant to consider. What is it you want me to tell you?"

"Everything. I want you to sit down here by me and tell me the whole story from the beginning. Please."

He hesitated a moment longer and then, his mind made up, returned to his chair, crossed his legs and began. "Here it is," he said.

"Caroline, about twenty years ago or so, your father was a comparatively poor man—poor, I mean, compared to what he afterward became. But he was a clever man, an able business man, one who saw opportunities and grasped them. At that time he obtained a grant in South America for—"

"I know," she interrupted. "The Akrae Rubber company was formed. You told Steve and me all about that. What I want to know is—"

"Wait. I did not tell you all about it. I said that another man invested $100,000 with your father to form that company. That man, so we now know, was your uncle, Captain Eliza Warren."

"I guessed that. Of course it must have been him."

"It was. The captain had saved some money, and that had been his idea. He had believed in his shrewdness and capability. He invested this $100,000 on Rodgers Warren's word that the investment was likely to be a good one, and that to help the latter in business. For a few years the company did nothing. During that time your father and uncle disagreed."

"Yes," she said. "I remember. But you connected with this one—and they did not see each other again while Rodgers lived. In that long period the Akrae company made millions. But Eliza supposed it to be bankrupt and worthless, because—well, to be frank, because his brother wrote him to that effect."

"Now we come to the will. Your father, Caroline, was not a bad man at heart. He realized how he had deceived the brother who had been so kind to him, and he kept promising himself to some day repay the money he had taken. To insure that he put his notes with the other papers of the company. If he did not, it could be destroyed. If he did not, it should be there to prove—what it did prove. But always in his mind was the thought of you and Steve, the children he loved. He had quarreled with his brother. It is true. He had cheated him, but restitution for that debt he had provided. But what would become of you, left—in case he died without making restitution—penalty? He knew his brother, as I said, knew his character, respected his honesty and believed in his conscientiousness and his big heart. So he made his will, and in it, as you know, he appointed Eliza your guardian. He threw his children and their future into the mercy and generosity of the brother he had wronged. That is his reason, as we surmise it, for making that will."

Old Styles Revived. Small corsetless bra, which was used in quantities a few years ago, is now being used to form large daisies on centerpieces.

Lacy-daisy and thousand dower stitch will again be among the leading stitches for the coming season. They are easily worked, and by lengthening and shortening the stitches all sorts of charming flowers are quickly formed.

Cross stitch, especially the conventional design in several shades of blue, is still a great favorite. Naturalistic designs in cross stitch are frequently seen worked in many colors, but they are not as popular as the conventional designs which adapt themselves so readily to cross stitch.

Odd Geographical Division. The range of the Blue Ridge mountains in Pennsylvania is divided by a river every twenty-seven miles, as follows: From the Susquehanna to the Swatara, twenty-seven miles; from the Swatara to the Schuylkill, twenty-seven miles; from the Schuylkill to the Lehigh, twenty-seven miles; from the Lehigh to the Delaware, twenty-seven miles. At the next twenty-seven miles is a hollow of New Jersey, in which nestles a lake known as Culver's pond.

EARNING POWER

How to Increase Your Husband's Income at Home.

EIGHT WAYS WOMEN TRIED.

What Actual Women Have Achieved by Using Their Knowledge of How to Do Some One Thing Better Than Anybody Else.

Until the high cost of living problem is solved one must keep on living! Even by most clever planning a family of four cannot be supported adequately on $702 a year. Thousands of wives are glorifying their "standing" instead of hurrying it by helping their husbands increase their incomes. Below are eight actually tried and successful plans.

A California woman sent cards stating she would make buttonholes at 2 cents each. Hurried and affluent mothers responded at once. Her work was neat. She made two average buttonholes in ten minutes—24 cents an hour, $120 a day for the five hours a day she could spare.

An Illinois wife had a large back yard. She specialized in cucumbers. She, with her two little boys, kept the place in fine condition. Summer cucumbers for salads, smaller fall ones for pickles, were her stock. What she did not sell she put up in glass jars attractively. These sold readily for 30 cents per quart. She netted an average of $25 per month.

A California wife made round, heart shaped and animal shaped and sugar cookies, tied neatly in wax paper, a dozen to package, 15 cents a dozen. She began with a small oven on her gas stove and in two years needed and bought a "baker size" range. She does all her work of mornings and clears $40 to $50 per month.

Why not rabbit raising? An Iowa wife in a small town found this one pay. Feed only alfalfa dry and rolled barley. With several bucks and 150 does $75 to $100 per month has been cleared by her. Small capital needed, as a very few will soon "start business" on a paying basis.

A Connecticut wife advertised herself as a skilled fruit canner. Her pay was 40 cents an hour or one-fourth of fruit canned. The share plan gave her enough fruit for her family of five, and often she had "extras" to sell for special occasions. Result, plenty of good fruit from $10 to $25 per month cash.

A little wife in New Jersey "induced" laundry work. She makes a specialty of laundering beautiful underwear, babies' and children's dresses, children and crepe de chine waists. Her "standing" is of the best. Her winter work averaged $15 to $30. In summer she makes as high as $45.

The husband of a California woman made her a fine loom. She devoted her spare time to learning how to weave and how to create special designs. Now, after two years, she turns out skilled work and clears $100 or more a month. Her husband's salary is $75.

Polish dressing, bean bugs made in one minute slugs, baby rompers and creepers and gingham and hand embroidered subimbrons for infants all in the spare moments of a clever New York woman made delightfully. Trade among a few intimate friends at first, but so well done as to be quickly advertised. Income per month always $30 to $40. Christmas season brought $50 a month for mother, a bonus of $25 to fourteen-year-old daughter assistant.

In every woman lies the desire to do some one thing. If we stick to it patiently through the first slow moments we will find the results astonishing for effort expended and ourselves much happier. Let us be lifting our husbands' burdens and giving something to life out of our own best selves—Pictorial Review.

COMMISSIONER WISSER AIDED, SAYS DAUGHTER

Dravosburg Official Relieved of Distressing Catarrhal Affections.

Mrs. Wm. Kestfoot recently made the following statement regarding the benefits her father, Henry Wissar, street commissioner of Dravosburg, Pa., received from Tanlac, the master medicine.

"Yes," said Mrs. Kestfoot "I came to give this statement about my father's experience with Tanlac. He was troubled terribly with catarrh of the head and stomach and he doctoring for 10 years. He always complained in the morning of a fullness of his head and said he didn't feel like he had enough energy to commence his day's work. He seldom ate breakfast, as he suffered from a sickening sensation which he attributed to the accumulations of catarrhal mucus in his throat.

"He also complained of headaches, and coughed continually throughout some of the forenoons. His sleep became impaired and he had been forced to get out of bed in order to breathe comfortably. These choking sensations troubled him some during the day time, too.

"I read about Tanlac and I just determined I should try it at my expense. I bought the medicine and asked him to take it. At first he was a bit skeptical as he had failed to obtain relief through other medicines he had taken. I persuaded him to try Tanlac though and he is now very glad that he took my advice.

"The accumulations in his throat have disappeared his appetite for breakfast has improved and he is generally in much better. He said the other day that he is feeling like a new man and I am so glad that the medicine has helped him. I believe that in a very short time if he continues to take Tanlac his catarrh will be permanently cured. I gladly recommend this wonderful remedy on his behalf.

Tanlac, the Master Medicine, that helped Commissioner Wissar and thousands of others is sold here by the Connelville Drug Co. where it can now be had.

"WOMANHOOD" COMING
Film Approved by War Department
Booked for Orpheum.

Approved by the War Department "Womanhood, the Glory of the Nation" which is a sequel to "The Battle Cry of Peace" and a direct answer to the pacifist group and the anti-American foreigners in this country and which comes from the pens of Commodore J. Stuart Mackenzie and Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady was photographed by the Greater Vitaphone company and is conveyed to be the master production of that company, will be presented at the Orpheum theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday next, July 16, 17 and 18, under the personal management of Messrs. Trimble and Luerff of the Arcade Theatre.

The aim of "Womanhood" is the exaltation of patriotism and the necessity of preparation of the compelling power of self sacrifice especially among the women of America in these troubled and anxious times. It is the story which the American woman makes to those who would betray or despise her flag.

"Womanhood" is the supreme revelation of the three noblest passions in a woman's life. Rightly called "The Love Epic of the Screen," it depicts the love of a man for a man, the love of a mother for her child and the love of a woman for her country.

The cast of other big spectacles of this sort do not compare with that of "Womanhood." The names Alice Joyce, Harry Moray, Naomi Childers, James Morrison, Joseph Kilgus, Peggy Hyland, Bobby Connelly, Walter McGrath, Edward Elkus, Tompkins Saxe and thousands of others go to make this the mightiest cast ever appearing in any photoplay.

This production will be presented in a manner in keeping with the other offerings of these exhibitors, an orchestra will interpret the full musical score.

Three performances will be given each day, at 2:30, 7:30 and 9:15, with a special matinee Wednesday morning for children between the ages of five and 16 years, at which time special prices will prevail.
